A coaching community and practitioner research centre

The Henley Centre for Coaching is a global leader in coaching research and coach training. We are a triple-accredited coaching provider offering postgraduate university qualifications in coaching, and accreditation from the Association for Coaching (AC), the International Coach Federation (ICF) and the European Mentoring and Coaching Council (EMCC).

Research
The Henley coaching team consists of leading practitioners and academics who have shaped the coaching profession since the late 1990s. They have written many of the most popular coaching books and they continue to publish in leading management journals and to contribute at conferences worldwide. Their writing, thinking and research informs our teaching and ensures our programmes are at the cutting edge of coaching practice.

Current research projects include:
- Team Coaching
- Coaching in the Middle East
- Mindfulness and Coaching
- Supervision

Programmes
The Centre provides formal accredited coach and supervision training through the:
- Professional Certificate in Coaching
- Professional Certificate in Supervision
- MSc in Coaching & Behavioural Change
- PhD in Coaching Research

These programmes are delivered in the UK at our Greenlands campus, and the Professional Certificate in Coaching is delivered globally.

We also design programmes in collaboration with organisations to develop their in-house coaching skills. Contact us to discuss how we can work with you to develop an effective customised programme.

Events
The Centre provides continuous professional development and networking for coaching professionals through masterclasses, webinars and conferences – see our events calendar overleaf.
